

Solution brief

What's New in Projectplace

November 2016

With the November Release of Projectplace, we are pleased to introduce a large enhancement that allows for more configurable access to Workload.

Workload access: Departments

For accounts with workload access there is now the ability to restrict users' access by department. When the department restriction is set, the user will only be able to see the workload of others belonging to that department.

This release adds more flexibility for organizations to provide workload access to team leads and department managers across the enterprise; without having to worry about what data they have access to. This feature also offers your workload managers a more focused, out-of-the-box view of their resources – limiting the need to filter every time they access the tool.

For more information, please visit Projectplace.com

